

Is e-Prescribing Ready?

R. David Allard, M.D.

Just ask one of the 35,000 doctors like me who use it now.

I'm Dr. David Allard, a family practice doctor with the Henry Ford Health System and one of the 35,000 physicians nationwide who use e-prescribing technology. Electronic prescribing saves lives by replacing hand-written prescriptions that are a major cause of medication errors—a crisis that kills some 7,000 people each year. E-prescribing also saves money by helping me to identify lower cost alternatives to more expensive brand drugs. More doctors need to use e-prescribing. That's why it should be required in Medicare.
